Summary of Experience

I have extensive experience in applying quantitative analysis and economic theory to both microeconomic and macroeconomic questions. My recent work centers on using economic and financial analyses to address questions arising in complex business litigation across a diverse range of industries, including automotive, steel, oil, and finance, among others.

During my doctoral studies, I conducted research in urban economics, real estate economics, and transportation economics. Earlier in my career, I analyzed the macroeconomic outlook of Latin American countries, with particular emphasis on the effects of monetary and fiscal policy. I have taught multiple economics courses in both English (University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign) and Spanish (Universidad del Rosario).
